Quilting is a retroactive operation, hence the direction of quilting is backwards. That is, the signified "œstays behind"• with respect to, comes after, the signifier. Thus, signifiers are floating, unfixed, and at some point "œintention"• pierces that chain, and only after it does, do we have a signified, or meaning.

Notes on Lacan/Zizek Quilting point (point de capiton)

Saussure's 'theory of the sign' defined a sign as being made up of the matched pair of signifier and signified. The signifier is the pointing finger, the word, the sound-image. A word is simply a jumble of letters. The pointing finger is not the star. It is in the interpretation of the signifier that meaning is created.
